

SIPO (Seminario de Investigadores Postdoctorales)

Speaker: Fernando Bolaños (CMM)

Titulo: A journey through discourses and practices.

Summary: Our experiencing and, thus, our practices are co-enabled by entwined fields of knowledge, fields of power and forms of subjectivity. Through the articulation of different research pieces, and one protagonist, in this SIPO session we will tackle the following question: how free are we? Our protagonist is a student enrolled in Chile's Secondary Technical Vocational Education and Training (S-TVET) system. All research pieces used to drive then narrative of the presentation are the result of a postdoctoral research endeavor. These include research articles published in indexed journals (WoS and Scopus), cut-motion videos and a peer-reviewed book published by the Organization of Ibero-American States for Education, Science and Culture (OEI, for its acronym in Spanish). It is hoped that the space provided by SIPO can enable a conversation between researchers from different areas of knowledge where we can ponder on the underlying rationalities and logics behind our experiencing and practices.
